

What did
Arts on the Block
do in 2022?

AOB welcomed 2022 by taking root in our Silver Spring Studio and completing the installation of “The Artist’s Way”, our beautiful mosaic entryway “designed through the experience of seeing the growth of AOB”. Branching out into other areas of Montgomery County, talented young creatives designed and fabricated commissions for Lerner’s Black Hill development “inspired by the happy moments that make you want to stop time,” especially for the Kid’s Clubhouse. In Wheaton, AOB youth artwork created for MoCo ReConnect empowers, motivates, and reminds other youth in need of support services that “Everyone is Royalty”.

Friends of White Oak commissioned a “piece that marks a new beginning” during a design process that transformed boundaries into creative opportunities.

From land to sea, emerging creative professionals designed and installed murals at Diamond Farms Skate Spot featuring a pirate ship, evoking the flowing of the ocean, and capturing the gentle rebelliousness of youth.

On to the cosmos, the Tree of Life design for Temple Emanuel “connects the sky to the largeness of the universe” and to the ground, where flowers grow through work and care.

The circle of life also shaped the design for a commission by Artists Circle Fine Art, of Maryland’s state bird, the oriole, inspired by renewal, growth, and the branches that connect us.

2022 began to wind down and our roots deepened at the studio in preparation for 2023. A private commission gave new insight into the abstract artists who paved the way for many of our young creatives, influencing a colorful and rhythmic geometric design. In-studio collaboration with the Maryland Art Education Association (MAEA) illustrated the power of partnership, shared values, and vision. A “specific moment in life” shaped the falling snow design chosen by client and supporter Lerch, Early & Brewer for their annual holiday card. And as 2023 came into view, so too did the face of “A Grandmother’s Love”. The colorful personification of memory, wisdom, and the “elder in our life that loves us, flaws and all” was designed and commissioned in commemoration of the 20th Anniversary of Arts on the Block in 2023.
